Participants: See attached list.

Agenda: Participants approved the draft agenda (attached).

26 scholars from 22 countries met last fall in Bad Duerkheim to put the Comparative Candidate Survey on track. The conference started on Friday, October 6, 2007, at 14:30 hrs with a welcome address of the director of the MZES, Prof. Dr. Wolfgang C. Müller. It came to an end with the conference dinner on Saturday, October 7, 2007. Participants departed from the conference hotel in the morning of the following day.

During one and a half conference day, participants discussed and revised the draft core questionnaire of the Comparative Candidate Survey as well as a set of rules regarding data quality and data exchange. In the course of its deliberations, the meeting installed task forces in order to close remaining gaps in the questionnaire and to identify the most important macro variables that need to be added to the micro data. More in particular, additional questions were commissioned on the nomination process (Pedersen), intra-party democracy (Cross), and on the adaptation of the questionnaire to the specifics of multi-member districts (Mendéz Lago). Two sub-committees were built in order to elaborate proposals for the collection of context information: Gschwend and Selb volunteered to draft an inventory of constituency level properties that should be added to the micro-level data; and Freire, Cross, Narud, Beltran and Markowski agreed to draft a macro-questionnaire – similar to the one used by CSES – that should be filled in by local study directors. At the end of the meeting, some first ideas about common publications were discussed.

Overall, this short but very intense international meeting was extremely successful. A questionnaire and a set of rules on data collection was agreed, and operational decisions were taken how to fill remaining gaps.

These additional pieces of work were prepared in the weeks following the conference, and could finally be sent out to project participants in the second half of February 2007.
